Quranic hermeneutics extraction of phytochemicals respond with response surface methodology (RSM) at which the effect of three factors namely (1) condition liquid/solid ratio, (2) extraction time and (3) ethanol percentage on ultrasonicassisted extraction (UAE) in obtaining the maximum of total polyphenols (TP), total flavonoids (TF) and condensed tannins (CD) from pomegranate peels are evaluated. The optimum condition was obtained using a liquid/solid ratio of 20, extraction time of 30.94 min and 59.26% of ethanol offered the highest contents of TP, TF and CT simultaneously. The results obtained during the experimental design were in agreement with those with the predicted values (Hayder et al., 2021). [2]

(1) The condition of liquid/soil ratio was evaluated by placing dish soap in the soil sample extracted with a soil extraction tool of 8mm in length at the base of the Laurel sumac trunk.]
(2) The time of extraction was a glossy foggy day at the 9th Hour verily in preparation for the soil of the seed of the Last Hour. Follow the Straight path.
(3) Ethanol percentage of utltrasoniccassisted extraction creates cavitation bubbles in a solvent imploding energy creating shock waves, micro jets, high shear force which break down cell membranes and extract intracellular material.
(4) UAE, in the permission of Allah, extracts lipids and bioactive compounds from plant seeds and microalga: extracting fragrance squalene and aroma compounds from fish.
